Hannibal Rowe.
Arlington, Va., December 14.—News from Milton, Fla., announcing the death at that place of Hannibal Rowe has been received here by his relatives of Gloucester. Mr. Hannibal Rowe, son of the late Captain and Mrs. Sterling Rowe, of this county, left Gloucester in early life and located at Milton, Fla.
He became eminently successful in the business and political life of his adopted home, and won the honor of becoming Mayor of Milton some years ago.
He is survived by three brothers and one sister—Messrs. John Rowe, Sterling Rowe, William Rowe, and Mrs.
Hannibal Rowe, all residents of Glou-

HOLIDAY SPIRIT ALREADY A WORK

There Is Noticeable Stir Among Men Who Make Laws at Washington.

ANXIOUS TO GET HOME

They Are Able to Practice Economy in Purchase of Yuletide Gifts.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Washington, December 14.—Although Congress has not yet been in session quite two weeks and the regular Christmas holidays are not scheduled to begin until next Thursday, there is already a noticeable stir among many of the national lawmakers to get home. This is true in spite of the fact that no mileage fee is allowed for making the home-going trip during the Yuletide, and while it might be thought that some of the members would prefer remaining in Washington to making long trips home, it is not so. In fact, just the contrary is the case. Already trunks and bags are being packed, railroad reservations are being secured, clerks are scurrying here and there making purchases of different kinds for the Congressmen, and generally getting things ready to be off with the legislative gong.

Washington merchants, while making good sales to the House and Senate members, are not doing all the business by any means, for there is a little store, a kind of legislative commissary arrangement at each end of the Capitol, where members may purchase books, stationery, fancy articles, pen knives, and, in fact, anything ordinarily found in an up-to-date book store, and they pay for what they find there a little less than half what the same things would cost in an ordinary store.

It is here that many Christmas purchases are made. Should the returning congressmen desire to purchase a handsome sofa pillow cover, a box of extra fine writing paper, or any of the hundred and one things which a man usually secures the night before Christmas, he saunters down to the little store in the basement, makes out a list of what he wants, has it charged to his account against the $125 allowed him for such matters every year, and the thing is done. He will find a nice, neat looking bundle tied with red cord when he gets back to his office, and the best thing about it is that it has cost him less than a merchant would charge for the same thing. These commissary stores are very popular with the Congressmen and make many sales throughout the year.

TELLS GIRLS TO GO ON MOTHER STRIKE

Country Has More Children Now Than It Is Taking Care Of.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Boston, December 14.—"Don't get married, girls; go on a mother strike" until industrial conditions for women are better," was the appeal made at Jordan Hall this afternoon by Miss Kate Barnard, prison commissioner of Oklahoma, where she is sometimes called "Oklahoma Kate."

"We have no need for more of our race as it is at present," declared Miss Barnard. "I have decided not to marry until women are far better off industrially and politically, and I'm not an old woman either."

Miss Barnard is well, perhaps she might be thirty or thereabouts—and she is very pretty.

"The first cause of crime is the overworking of mothers and those who some day will be mothers," said Miss Barnard.

She told how Oklahoma got its first child labor law, which has been a model for seventeen States since, and said this and the compulsory education law were aimed directly at this conservation of humanity, and the reduction of crime.

"It's a farce to pass a child labor law or a compulsory education law," she declared, "unless you provide against poverty, keeping children out of school."

She told how her bill provides that if a widow has children at work they can be taken from the mill and sent to school and the State will pay their wages, just as if they were at work.
There are 2,501 children now at school in Oklahoma under this provision.

Miss Barnard described child labor in glass factories where little workers last from three to five years. "And I say that the American girls have no time for matrimony until this condition is changed," she cried. "We don't need any more of a race until we can clear up what we have."

IMPORTANT "SMALLER" INDUSTRY.

New System Making Old Clothes New Introduced by Strictly Business Young Men.

At the start it looks like only a small industry, but the Richmond Cleaning and Pressing Company, which has started it at an West Broad Street, proposes to make it a big thing, and to that end they have invested about $5,000 worth of modern machinery and opened a clothing cleaning and pressing establishment, the like of which is in no other Southern city. The company, of which J. J. Follard is president, R. B.
Jones is vice-president, and Charles E.
Jones is manager, has introduced in Richmond the Brower and the Foote systems of dry cleaning, and they expect to keep a goodly sum of Richmond money at home that heretofore has been going to the North just to have clothes cleaned, pressed and made new by a patent process that has never before been introduced in the South.
To the dry cleaning establishment, which is equipped with costly machinery, has been added a dyeing department, which is as thoroughly equipped as the other. By the Brower system and the machinery used in it all kinds of garments, carpets and rugs are thoroughly cleaned without the use of water and without the usual scrubbing, and thus there is no danger of discoloring or shrinking, and yet the cleaning is thorough both inside and out.

It is said that thousands of Richmond citizens go to New York every year to pay for this class of work and now it is proposed to keep that cash at home and at the same time give better and quicker service.
